About Branch Community Support (BCS)

Social isolation and loneliness can affect anyone regardless of age and whether you are living in the remotest countryside or the busiest town. The impact on mental and physical health can be profound, leaving people at greater risk of high blood pressure, heart disease and stroke, depression, cognitive decline and dementia. Some of our beneficiaries are not in contact with their families and friends; and some can struggle to make connections in their local communities.

The transient nature of Service life means that people can easily find themselves isolated. Regular moves between postings makes it hard to put down roots and make friends; and periods of deployment mean that spouses and partners with children can miss the support of their partner. On return from deployment, difficulties re-integrating into family life can put relationships under strain and make people feel alone.

We find that some members of the Armed Forces community can be reluctant to ask for help. They may feel that it wounds their pride and dignity, or they may feel ashamed in accepting help from a charity. Trying to deal with problems alone can also contribute to loneliness and isolation.

When people do come to us for help, they may not realise, or want to admit, that they are lonely and isolated. We spend time getting to know each person so that we understand what all their needs are, and how we can help.

Email: support@knowyourpeople.co.uk

You will receive a standard activation email which includes a link to the KYP site. If this is the first time using KYP, you will need to create a password before accessing the system.

Before you begin

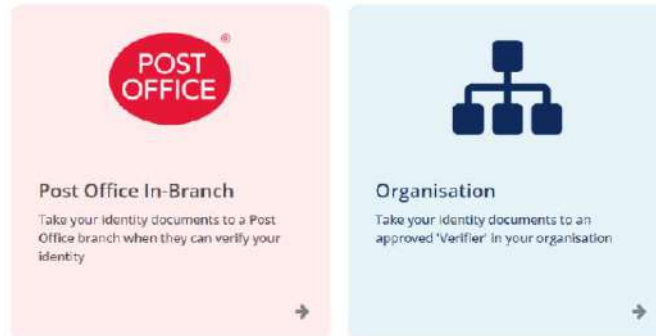

It is important that you have the information required for your application to progress. The checks within this application require you to provide the following information:

- Your full name that you are officially known by i.e. Mike should be entered as Michael
- Your current address + 5 years history
- Your passport and driving licence (if you have these) as well as identity documents as required by the DBS as part of the verification process. A list of relevant documents can be found here ID Check Documents
- You will need to choose who will check your documents.

How would you like to verify your application?

Before you continue, we ask that you pick a method of verifying your application.

You will be asked to select some identity documents to take to your nearest Post Office branch for verification. Please ensure that there is a branch, which provides this service, close to you by using the address search in the link below:

Document Certification Service | Post Office®

Fill out your application

Complete the application form. You will be asked to confirm that you are a UK national, this status will dictate which ID documents will be available for selection.

Additionally, you will be required to confirm the country of issue for all selected ID documents.

Once the application is submitted you will see a summary page showing the Post Office branch selected. At this point you will have a chance to change the Post Office branch originally selected and change the verification document selection if any errors are detected. This is an important consideration, as the Post Office will refuse to verify an ID document which does not exactly match that declared on the application form.

In-branch verification

Shortly after submitting the application, an email will be generated and sent directly to you with instructions for the next step. Attached to the email will be a PDF document including a summary of the application, the documents and a QR scan code. Simply take this QR code to the Post Office branch along with your ID documents to carry out the verification. The code can be printed out or presented to the Post Office staff using a mobile device screen. If for some reason the Post Office you selected in your application is no longer an option, you can go to any PO with that QR code, as long as it offers the service. Please check before you make a journey using the search feature here

In-person verification

If you have selected organisation as your method for ID verification, then a member of staff will need to see your documents in person. This will usually be your MEO but could be allocated to a member of staff closer geographically. Your regional MEA will organise this and an MEO will be in touch to make arrangements directly. This can mean a delay in your application while we wait for a suitable time and place for both of you.

What happens next?

Once the Post Office or MEO/MEA has confirmed verification of the ID documents, the application moves directly onto the countersigning stage with no further action required.

The Post Office QR codes are single use. If the application is rejected at countersigning stage, you will need to log back into your account to make the required adjustments and resubmit as normal. A new QR code will be generated, this will be different from the first so please make sure you take the most recent one to the Post Office.

If the Post Office notices any discrepancy with the ID documentation, you will be asked to amend the application and generate a new code.

Once countersigning is complete, the application is confirmed and passed over to the Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) for processing. Results will be made available on your profile once the process has been completed.
